

Guidelines on 2020 Graduate School Admissions for International Students

1. Purpose

The purpose of the Graduate School of Konan University is to contribute to the advancement and development of human culture and the promotion of social welfare through education and study of academic theories and the application of learning. The doctoral programs are classified into two programs, comprised of the first semester (two years) and the second semester (three years). The first semester is treated as a master's program. In the master's programs, students study their major fields and develop in-depth scholarship and research capabilities. In the doctoral programs, students develop a high level of expertise with respect to their major fields of study and cultivate knowledge necessary to engage in professional work through carrying out research activities as an independent researcher. We are conducting student recruitment for the Graduate Schools of Humanities, Natural Science, and Frontiers of Innovative Research in Science and Technology for this academic year as described below.

2. Number of Students Admitted
